Where learning doesn't happen between four walls—it moves. Literally.

A mix of freedom and structure, with strong adult support.

- Community, not classrooms.
- Confidence before curriculum.

No pressure to attend every day—just choose what works for you.
Gentle reintroduction to learning, for those who've disengaged.

UnBoundED – A Flexible Learning Option for Teens Who Need Something Different

The Journey of Learning: How UnBoundED Flows

At UnBoundED, learning doesn't happen between four walls—it moves. Literally.

Each week unfolds through a carefully supported rhythm of on-the-road learning, at-home planning, and purposeful reflection. This journey is designed to re-engage young people who need something different—especially those navigating school refusal or School Can't.

On the Bus – Where Learning Hits the Road

For 3–4 days a week, the UnBoundED bus becomes a mobile learning hub. We travel to museums, forests, studios, farms, and community spaces—where real-world, hands-on learning happens. Each day offers a new landscape, new questions, and new opportunities to grow. Young people help choose and shape these experiences. They're not just participants—they're co-pilots in their learning journey.

At Home – A Space to Breathe, Reflect, and Prepare

One day each week is spent at home, completing online learning, preparing for upcoming excursions, and reflecting on progress. This slower day supports autonomy, executive functioning, and rest—particularly important for those recovering from school-based trauma or anxiety.

Huddle Weeks – Recalibrate the Compass

Every five weeks, learners, families, and Guides come together for a Learning Huddle. These conversations are rich and personal—focused on wellbeing, progress, passions, and next steps. No marks. No shame. Just shared direction and support.
